

Overview

The Attorney General’s Office of Native American Affairs would like to provide a unique conference opportunity to familiarize attendees with a historical foundation of knowledge concerning the shared-jurisdictional issues that have developed while policing California’s Indian Country. In addition to sharing information on jurisdictional issues, the event is designed to demonstrate the progress that Tribal governments and state justice agencies have achieved in the process of establishing viable options to bring greater levels of public safety to Tribal communities. Attendees will learn about PL 280, deputization of Tribal police, BIA’s Special Law Enforcement Commission program, Tribal contracting for law enforcement services, and the impact of drugs and violence in Indian Country. We will also examine the Tribal and State efforts to achieve compliance of the Indian Child Welfare Act, as well as methamphetamine use in Indian Country and Mental Health and Justice Agency Collaborations.
